DETAILED ACTION

Examiner's Amendment

A telephone call was made to attorney Andrew Dunlap on 4 February 2010 and a message was left concerning a potential Examiner's Amendment to result in allowance of the claims. However, the call was not returned and a new rejection was necessitated.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2-5, 9-18, 23, and 26-30 are allowed. The subject matter of the claims is allowable as indicated in the previous action mailed 15 June 2009.

The previously indicated allowability of claim 24 is withdrawn in view of the new rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claim 24 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. Claim 24 sets forth a "computer-readable recording medium." However, the specification as originally filed does not explicitly define the computer-readable recording medium; it only provides examples "such as" various described media (para. 0186). The United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) is obliged to give claims their broadest reasonable interpretation consistent with the specification during proceedings before the USPTO. See In re Zletz, 893 F.2d 319 (Fed. Cir. 1989) (during patent examination the pending claims must be interpreted as broadly as their terms reasonably allow). The broadest reasonable interpretation of a claim drawn to a computer-readable recording medium (also called machine readable medium and other such variations) typically covers forms of non-transitory tangible media and transitory propagating signals per se in view of the ordinary and customary meaning of computer-readable media, particularly when the specification is absent an explicit definition or is silent. See MPEP 2111.01. When the broadest reasonable interpretation of a claim covers a signal per se, the claim must be rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 101 as covering non-statutory subject matter. See In re Nuijten, 500 F.3d 1346, 1356-57 (Fed. Cir. 2007) (transitory embodiments are not directed to statutory subject matter) and Interim Examination Instructions for Evaluating Subject Matter Eligibility Under 35 U.S.C. § 101, Aug. 24, 2009; p. 2.

To overcome this rejection, the examiner recommends amending the claim to require that the medium is a "non-transitory" medium, thus precluding the broadest reasonable interpretation from covering a signal claim.
